OUR JIM WINS.

THE SOLID

South Stands Firm.

New York

Gives Grover 45,000 Majority.

ILLINOIS

Sends Adlai to Washington With 18,000 Majority to His Credit

The Democratic party has simply swept the country. The solid South came up to the front with splendid majorities. New York gives 4,500 majority, Wisconsin gives Cleveland 12,000 majority, Illinois, which was considered as safe for Harrison as Pennsylvania, goes for Cleveland by 18,000 majority, and thus they go. Connecticut, Delaware, Indiana (8,500 majority), New Jersey, Wisconsin, etc. California, which was so solid, is only carried by the Harrison electors by 3,000, whilst Colorado, Kansas and Nevada go to Weaver. Idaho, North Dakota and even Otero, Bill McKinley's Ohio, are in doubt. We have simply carried the earth and must make a big crow over it.

But grand as all this is the old First Appellate district comes up and shouts loud and long that she too is in it and has James H. Hazelrigg to represent her in place of that non-politician who has been there for the last eight years. In the next Congress the House will stand about 213 Democrats, 129 Republicans and 14 populists. The Senate will most probably stand 44 Democrats, 40 Republicans and 4 populists.

The rooster and the tiger knocked out the eagle and the coon.

On Friday night the Democrats of Louisville celebrated the grand triumph of Tuesday in magnificent style. The parade was a great success, and Bedlam was not a circumstance to the noise made by the joyful victor. At the meeting in Court-house square speeches were made by Chairman Young, Gov. Brown, Mr. Waterson, Mr. Caruth, Gen. Hardin and Mr. McDermott, the orators being enthusiastically received.

Hear The Rooster Crow.

W. P. Guthrie, of Mt. Sterling, Ky., representing Green, Haffacker & Co., of Louisville, wholesale dealers in Boots and Shoe, will deal on the merchants of Central and Eastern Kentucky every sixty days. Any orders directed to Mr. Guthrie, Tyler-Apperson block, this city, will receive prompt attention.

LOOKS AND THEIR HISTORY.

Discussing Facts in Relation to Their Invention and Evolution.

Since man became secretive or covetous looks and bolts have been a necessity. To keep a watchful intruder on the right side of a door and the fingers of a thief from the object of his enmity our ancestors provided the wooden bar and bolt, the mysterious lock. The latter was of course the later product as involving mechanical skill and a knowledge of metals. The ancient Egyptians are credited with the manufacture of the original lock, which was simple in construction and by no means proof against the ingenuity of the primitive burglar. They were mostly made of wood, with an occasional example of iron or copper. The wooden lock was a further evolution, and during the Middle Ages, in which so much of mechanical work was associated with sacerdotal instincts and objects the products were characterized by elaboration and the highest style of finish.

The religion of mechanics in those medieval times was conscience in the modern sense, and it was to which in modern days we cannot honestly make so valid a claim. The result in the case of lock making was the perfection of the science of which it is said that history and antiquarians tell of no finer specimens, art and handiwork being happily compared. The master lock is a work of art, and in the use of the Celestial empire for centuries, the ancient Chinese being artists in mechanical devices, and by no means the blackheads so liberally scorned on the sand lots and platforms of modern times. The combination padlock has also a venerable record, and is attributed to the genius of a French locksmith, the opinion, however, being held by antiquarians that its inception dates back to a remoter period.

Be that as it may, it is evident that in looks as in everything else in pure mechanics, we are but improving on our predecessors. Invention is adapted itself to changing conditions. The lock is more a necessity than ever. It has more valuable to protect better educated rogues to frustrate and we are getting contently rich in both articles, while in the skill of the locksmith as much as in the value of the police we place the faith that leaves no room for our nightgowns, and keeps our bonds and leggers safe. We have evolution in lock manufacture from the Egyptian article to the modern combination mystery of which, far as burglarious intentions are concerned, there is no key but a deposit of giant powder or a pinch of dynamite.

It is, however, to the four types of locks named that we owe all subsequent evolutions, and are not particularly except in iron work, the most of elderly skill as we sometimes name. It is simply a matter of progress, and in mechanical invention, in a family circle, we could as reasonably expect to be on the census roll without a grandfather, as to be where we are in the mechanics without our predecessors. In the matter of locks we care more about practical protection than in making their brass and iron monuments of a canonized man or acting in the sense we are in keeping with the age that is more anxious about its deposits than its biographies. It is, however, none the less the fact that the ingenious mechanism of the modern lock we are but simply amplifying the discoveries of our predecessors.—Age of Steel.

Write Interests.

In writing letters to your friends or acquaintances, make what you say not only worth reading, but as free as possible from all affectation. Say very little about the affairs of the world, but be generous in what you write of your own private concerns, and apart from this do not pick and choose words, nor feel obliged to consider how each sentence shall be "rounded." Your letters will, in case you are, constantly considering your mode of expression, be full and simple and not worth their postage. Write to your friends as you would talk to them.

In the last century letter writing was a fine art, and as a result we have the most charming and perfect pictures of the times. Horace Walpole, Lady Mary Wortley Montagu and Miss Fanny Burney are three among the best famous letter writers of that day, when to send a letter any distance cost some shillings, and therefore all the "news," as well as the social and domestic events, were chronicled.—Harper's Young People.

Little Essay for a Tea Party.

Did you ever think about the logic of stimulus? Nature supplies her own. It is astonishing what she will do if you give her a chance. In how many cases will the letter writer tire of his brain? A breath under the apple tree, a siesta on the grass, a whiff of wind, an interval of refinement, and the balance and center are restored. A clean creature needs no little and responds so readily? There is something as miraculous as the letter itself. It is the letter that becomes a stimulus. Occasionally the gentle exaltation of a cup of tea is needed. A mind invents its own food, by which, without permanent injury, it makes vivid rallies and enjoys good moods.—Emerson.

"There's another thing I'd like to tell Mr. Langtry," said a woman at a reception, "and that is that I can never forgive her for telling a reporter about that one black gown of hers which she wore through a London season at the time when she could afford but one dress. You remember the story—everybody does—how she showed the neck on one evening, wore it high the next, and mended and pressed it between times, and how she ends up by saying, 'I never tell more than a woman can't do better with a single frock,' etc."

"Well, that wretched little story came out when she first bobbed up into popularity years ago, and it's like the Wandering Jew—no, more like the other fellow—it's still going and from the earth, seeking whom it may devour. It's always traveling, and it looks in on you at least about every five or six weeks. It pops up in the woman's column, then you from the editorial page, and even looks the other eye from the staid, respectable family journal."

"It isn't maddening enough to be bugged and nagged in this way, but your husband must needs make a point of reading that last paragraph out loud with exceeding relish, and then, if you lose your temper, think you are calling him a stingy old thing under your breath."

"Now that same paper I see that I shall stop taking instant. The editor that doesn't know a ten-year-old chestnut when he sees it isn't to be relied on for news. I don't believe a woman editor would do such a thing. I should know that old black silk gown, the minute she laid eyes on it."—New York Recorder.

Don't Care to Go.

A young married woman who takes an intelligent interest in current topics discussed the probabilities of a journey to Rome with some friends at her home the other day. She said, "I presume that some of us will live to see the time when the inhabitants of the earth can journey to Rome. The remark was overheard by Maggie, the new chambermaid, who had been in this country but a few weeks and had scarcely recovered from the effects of her voyage. At her first opportunity to speak with her mistress alone she asked, 'Say, mum, and where is that Rome?' The lady carefully explained to the unsophisticated girl a few simple facts about our neighboring planet and facetiously suggested, 'You may go there some day.' Maggie said, 'And do you be after goin'?' Maggie, with a startled look.

"I may if an opportunity should occur," replied the mistress demurely.

"Then, mum, I'll be after looking for a new place, if you please. I don't want to go to Rome, but I want to go to some place where I can travel on the water."—New York Times.

A Radical Cure.

The pastor of a church in a mining village was greatly annoyed by the conduct of the younger members of the congregation without their parents' consent. In the matter of locks we care more about practical protection than in making their brass and iron monuments of a canonized man or acting in the sense we are in keeping with the age that is more anxious about its deposits than its biographies. It is, however, none the less the fact that the ingenious mechanism of the modern lock we are but simply amplifying the discoveries of our predecessors.—Age of Steel.

A young sleepless one Sunday evening, and picking up his coat and hat stepped into the aisle. To his dismay the minister stopped short in his discourse.

"Young man," he said, "the lady who went out last is not the one you wish to escort home. When she goes I will let you know. Sit down. In future when a young woman goes out I will call on the proper young man to take care of her."

He resumed his sermon. There was much giggling and a great deal of wrath. But his sermons were not interrupted again during the whole winter.—Yankee Blade.

Why Electric Cars Must Evolve.

"Do you know why an electric car goes up hill slowly, as though drawn by pony mules?" asked an electrician of a fellow car on the road. "Well, I'll tell you," said he. "There is a certain amount of voltage or electromotive force distributed in the famous letter writers of that day, when to send a letter any distance cost some shillings, and therefore all the 'news,' as well as the social and domestic events, were chronicled.—Harper's Young People."

What Heated Him.

"Smith and I shared a railway accident and lay insensible for a long time."

"Did the doctors finally bring him to?"

"No. Somebody whispered that Smith had an excellent case, and no doubt could collect heavy damages from the company. That revived him."—Exchange.

How It Feels to Lead a Procession.

"If you want to experience a novel sensation," said a gentleman who sports a colonel's uniform as member of a governor's staff whenever said governor turns out on parade, just get on horseback and take part in some great procession like those which marked the Columbian festivities.

"It is the most curious feeling that you ever experienced, I will wager a hat. It beats hashish or opium smoking all to pieces. It is unlike any other thing that you ever saw or heard of."

"At first you are all right, and you hear the bands and see the great furies of humanity on either side of the way as distinctly as you ever saw anything in your life. But after awhile things begin to grow blurred to your senses. The music dies away and there is nothing but a dull overbearing feeling that you are to be witness to some dreadful accident, but for the life of you you cannot turn your eyes away from it. After awhile you cease to be human being at all and become a mere automaton. You are not controlled by human emotions, but by the magnetism of the crowd. It is some such sort of hypnotic state, I apprehend, which men get into during a battle and which makes them so unlike themselves."—New York Herald.

The Spider Hawk.

The miners of Colorado who have built cabins on the mountain sides know what a pest the small brown wood spider proves to be. They throw their wells over our best clothes, cooking utensils, in every corner, where you can get them, in your eyes and mouth. Not only that, but they will drop into the frying pan water locked or upon the table where you are eating. Nature has furnished a remedy and a friend when she gave the spider hawk. The name is given by miners to a small bird of the crow family, three-fourths of an inch in length. He can easily be recognized by the quick, nervous strokes of his wings. They build a nest up among the rafters of your cabin of wood pulp or furze from the outer coating of old dead trees. Then they are ready for business.

Every few minutes you can see your hawk climb up the rafters with a spider, sometimes carrying one four or five times his weight. Some times they get a spider so heavy that they will fall many times before they succeed in reaching their nest. They never give up, but keep on trying until they succeed. When the spider is safely placed in the nest the female hawk deposits her egg in the dead body. The hawks live only in pairs, as far as our observation goes. They become rather tame and seem to be obliged to you for building the spider trap for their benefit.—Great Spider Trap.

Grant Allen on Literary Rewards.

Grant Allen's experience and advice may be of service to other aspirants who may fondly imagine that the successful literary man trades a primary highway to fame and fortune. "If anybody thinks," he says, "that my upward path from obscurity to a very modest modicum of popularity and success is a matter of easy one he is immensely mistaken. I had a ten years' hard struggle for bread, into the details of which I don't care to enter. It left me broken in health and spirit, with all the vitality and vivacity crushed out of me. I suppose the object of this series of papers is to warn off ingenious and aspiring youth from the hardest worked and worst paid of the professions. If so I would say earnestly to the ingenious and aspiring: 'Brain for brain' in the market can you sell your abilities to such poor advantage. Don't take to literature if you're capital enough to buy a good broom and energy enough to annex a vacant coaling."

Rich Scientists.

No scientific body in the United States has as many millionaires as the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. At the top of the list is Alexander Graham Bell, whose profits on the telephone are represented by eight figures. Next comes Edison with a seven figure fortune. Bell, of electrical light fame, Edison and Edward Weston are more than millionaires.

Frank J. Sprague was a Junior officer in the United States navy. He is now living in the mansion which was built for the Grants. His company sold out to the Edison company for $1,250,000. He had it if it went to the inventor.—Exchange.

When a Man Is Developed.

The conclusion is arrived at that a man's full mental power is not reached before the age of twenty-five, and the development of talent is most marked between the ages of thirty and forty-five years.—Chambers Journal.

OIL IN MISSOURI.

It Is Too Thick and Too Hard to Get to Be of Very Great Use.

The only oil produced in Missouri in 1889 and 1890, concerning which it has been possible to secure any information by the geological survey, was in West Boone township, Bates county, near the Kansas state line, southeast from Paola, where the oil produced in Kansas in 1889 was found. The oil comes from sand 250 feet deep. It is similar in every respect to the Kansas oil. It is sold to local dealers for lubricating purposes. In 1889 twenty barrels of oil, valued at $40, were produced.

The cost of opening the well in that year was $250, the total capital $750. The territory consists of 600 acres, valued as oil territory at $210, the rigs, well, engines, etc., being valued at $320 and tank at $20. There was but one producing well and one tank. The cost of drilling the well was but $150 a foot.

An interesting history is connected with the drilling of some wells at Adrian, Bates county, Mo. Oil was discovered here in 1889 at a depth of thirty-three feet while prospecting for coal. The oil sand was some twenty-five feet thick, overlaid with sandstone shale to a thickness of eight feet.

The oil oozed from a rock into the shaft and was bailed out. The shaft was in the creek bottom, and being bored by the iron bit water was well ceased to produce. Several drill holes were then made. Three of these yielded about six gallons in ten hours, but the holes were not cased and were soon drained out by water. In 1883 a derrick was erected, proper oil tools procured and a well sunk over 500 feet. The oil was secured in it by two miles wide under thirty-three to ninety feet in depth. The well was pumped but once, and then only for ten hours, the product being twenty gallons of oil, with a large quantity of water.

The oil is similar to that found in Paola. In a report to the geological survey, E. B. Marshall, of Adrian, states that he has done a great deal of prospecting for oil in that section of the country, and finds a strip of territory some ten miles long and from one to three miles wide under laid with gas and oil, but that the difficulty with the region as a producing territory is that the sand is too fine and the oil too thick to give any great production. There is a great deal of sand rock impregnated with oil, which can be driven out by heat.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

How to Make a Call.

Ring the bell with your right hand, which should always be ungloved, in case you are obliged to shake hands before being able to take the glove off. Hand one card to the servant for each of the persons you are calling upon and state distinctly the name. If you are calling at the house where a young lady is visiting another lady whom you do not know, you should invariably leave a card for the hostess also. This is a matter of courtesy to her. In a case like this you should, if in the evening, invariably wear evening dress, no matter how well you know the young lady.

When she introduces you to her hostess she will be much better pleased if you are better criticism. Leave your hat and greatcoat in the hall, and after you are ushered into the parlor or reception room it is your duty to sit down. Stand before the door, so that when your friend enters you can rise gracefully, facing her upon leaving; do not expect that she will follow you into the hall. Unusually say good night before leaving the room. And when you have said good night do not stand upon the order of going, but sit at once. No long stories afterward.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Taking the Eyes.

The eyes should never be severely taxed when it can be avoided. This does not mean nonsense, for these very delicate servants are so marvellously and powerfully constructed that they will stand a great amount of hard work, if the conditions are favorable, without injury. Some of the most injurious practices are those connected with reading, especially the modern fine type and poorly printed newspaper. Reading upon railroad trains or street cars is to be avoided if possible, since the vibration of the book or paper constantly breaks the focus and imposes a severe strain upon the optics.—Good House Keeping.

Mosquito and Munket.

There is a touch of humor in the fact that mosquito and munket are from the same root, the Latin word for fly. One comes through the Spanish, the other through the Italian. The popular notion that the Mosquito coast of Central America gave name to the Jersey pest is probably an invention of the true sequence.—New York Sun.

One Way of Telling Fortunes.

Two ladies were accosted by a gypsy woman, who told them that for a salary each of them would show them their husbands' faces in a pull of water. On the water being brought they exclaimed, "Why, we only see our own faces!" "Well," said the old woman, "those faces will be your husbands' when you are married."—London Tit-Bits.

FINDS NO PLACE TO LIGHT.

Before the cock crew the Gazette denied the Force Bill thrice.

The new steel cruiser, "Cincinnati," was successfully launched Thursday, at the Brooklyn Navy-yard.

St. Louis Globe Democrat: Thank God, the Supreme Court is not elected by the people, or the Democrats would have that, too.

There comes a report from Rome that the Cardinal Consistory will take place at the Vatican December 10, when it is expected that the Pope will create thirteen Cardinals. There are seventeen vacant Cardinalates.

Ex-Secretary Whitney stated to a Courier-Journal correspondent that under no circumstances would he become a member of Mr. Cleveland's Cabinet. He accepts any position at all, it will, in all probability, be that of Minister to England—Courier-Journal.

It is said Gov. Flower, of New York, desires to be made United States Senator, and the Democrats seem inclined to give him the position, the more as it will pave the way for Lieutenant-Governor Sheehan to occupy the gubernatorial chair. Sheehan's splendid service during the campaign entitles him to anything he wants.

Out of all the gloom of defeat the Republicans can shout mightily loud over the election of Silas Adams in the Eleventh district. The gallant Hindman couldn't break into this rock-riddled and steel-barred Republican stronghold. But the Hon. Silas will feel mighty lone some when he gets to the House and gazes upon the aching void on the Republican side of the chamber.

Probably the largest financial winner on the election is Mike Dwyer, the well-known tuffman of New York. It is said on good authority that he will pocket a gain of nearly $50,000. Dwyer placed his money in every conceivable way. He bet on the general result, the States of New York and New Jersey, the city and county majorities and Cleveland's majority in Indiana. He has won nearly every bet he made. Joseph J. O'Donohue is another heavy winner, his figures being placed at $20,000. He bet a great deal on the result in Indiana.

The Cabinet states are being figured out by the knowing ones. Here is one that seems to be popular: Secretary of State, Thos. F. Bayard, of Delaware; Secretary of the Treasury, Jno. L. Mitchell or ex-Postmaster-General Viles, of Wisconsin; Secretary of the Navy, William C. Whitney, of New York; Secretary of War, W. B. Franklin, of New Hampshire; Secretary of the Interior, Isaac P. Gray, of Indiana; Attorney-General, Congressman Wm. L. Wilson, of West Virginia, or Congressman Culberson, of Texas; Postmaster-General, Don M. Dickinson, of Cleveland has a way of his own of knocking all such states into smithereens.

It has been the generally accepted belief in political circles that ex-Secretary Whitney, who has done so much to achieve the sweeping victory for Cleveland, would be offered the place of Secretary of State by the President, but those who appear to know something about it say Mr. Whitney would prefer to be Secretary of the Navy, if he enters the Cabinet at all. But again it is authoritative (?) stated that neither Whitney nor Dickinson will accept a place in the Cabinet.

HILL'S TALK.

He Says the Democrats Must Carry Out Their Pledges.

Senator Hill, speaking of Cleveland's election, says: "It is not only a personal triumph of Ex-President Cleveland, and a just tribute to him, but it is a vindication of the Democratic principles which he champions. The people were opposed to a Force Bill, and desired tariff reform, and upon those two issues we have won the victory. Unquestionably the Federal election issue kept several Southern States with us which might otherwise have gone for the People's Party. I trust that our victory will carry with it the control of the United States Senate, which will enable us to place Democratic legislation upon the Federal statute books."

We must carry out our pledges by reform in the tariff and reducing Federal taxation; not by harsh and extreme measures, but upon the conservative line indicated in our platform and in the speeches of our candidates. If we shall secure the Senate we can show the people the beneficent results of Democratic policy, and the good that we can accomplish, will insure us the power for many years. I think the Democrats would prefer a vigorous and aggressive policy, and to that end the existing Federal election law should be repealed. It is a vexatious, arbitrary and unnecessary measure, capable of great injustice and abuse, and, in the hands of unprincipled officials, may become an instrument of aggression. The manner in which it was sought to be used against us by our opponents on election day furnishes an abundant argument for its repeal."

The Wall of the G. O. P.

Of all the bad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these: "We couldn't get Ben."

The Republican papers are all saying "we are glad the Democrats have the Senate, as well as the House and presidency." Yes, and we are glad too. We are even more rejoiced than they can possibly be over this fact, and we will be glad to see the majority in the Senate as large as possible.

The Saintry John Wannamaker does not like the secret ballot. He says "it was a 'booth' who struck a blow at American freedom in 1865, and I am afraid it was another 'booth' which overthrew, Tuesday the party of anti-slavery and protection to American industries."

It takes no very careful reading between the lines to understand that Saintry John, does not approve of the "free ballot and the fair count," that the "God and morality party" have been clamoring for so loudly. The eight to seven Electoral Commission slights the compiler of the "Choice Gems of Sacred Song" much better.

It is now conceded on all sides that the Democrats will have a majority in the Senate as well as the House. This gives them the power for the first time in 32 years to pass any bill desired. March 4, 1893, there will be twenty-five vacancies to be filled in the Senate, of these the Democrats are sure of thirteen, the Republicans nine and the Peoples party three. This gives the Democrats 44 in number in the Senate, the Republicans 40 and the Peoples party 4. The probability is, the Populists will mainly vote with the Democrats, so that a fair working majority will be assured to us.

WANT TARIFF REFORM.

The Chicago Single Tax Club has adopted the following resolutions: "Whereas, the National Democratic platform denounces protection as a fraud and a robbery, and declares it to be unconstitutional, and with these declarations, submitted the matter to the people, therefore;

"Resolved, That the tidal wave which swept the country last Tuesday was a righteous condemnation of protection; "Resolved, That we denounce as false to the pledges of the Democratic party, animosity to its continued success, any utterance on the part of its accredited leaders which tends to justify perpetuation of any vestige of the protective system."

"Resolved, Labor has demanded justice; when monopolists seek protection they should ask it by its right name, and at the place provided for the needy, and not strive to turn the National Government into a gigantic pauper institution."

MCKENZIE

Dame Nature made a perfect mold, And in it put the best of clay; Then, after she had made the man, She slyly threw the mold away. "I've made a model man," she said, "And there can be no more like him." It filled her heart with pride when she Gave Old Kentucky "Quisling Jim."

THE CAUSE OF IT.

Secretary Chas. Foster says: "There were three classes of people who voted the Democratic ticket. One was a set of manufacturers, who got tired of labor troubles, and who came to the conclusion that free trade was better for them, because it would reduce wages and thus compensate for the reduction of tariff. Another class concluded that the McKinley bill was too high. The third was cheap labor. That class thought the profits made by the manufacturers were not properly distributed; that proprietors got too much and they too little."

Jerry Rusk says: "We are cleaned out, that's all there is about it," said he, referring to Tuesday. "In my opinion, the tariff was the whole and sole cause of it. There has been a howl about the tariff everywhere, and then the Homestead affair made the laboring class discontented. Undoubtedly there has been a change in public sentiment as to the tariff."

Tom F. Rogers, U. S. Commissioner, is the only office-holding Republican who has a cinch on his office—and the Lord only knows how many fellows would like to raise Tom's scalp.

The people have suggested that the stereotyped phrase, "Judge Holt not sitting," will not be needed in any of the reports from the Court of Appeals after January 1.

"Jimmie, don't you think you have undertaken a right big contract?"

Jimmie has finished the contract, grading, tunnelling, trestle work, laying of track—all complete and rolling stock is ready to be put on January 1, 1893. The contract was close and well calculated, but after completion a nice margin was left for Jimmie, not less than a 1,000.

The victory of Hazelrigg over Holt in the First Appellate district is almost as stupendous, in proportion, as the results in the National election. The present incumbent had an acknowledged majority of 2,670 votes (given to Wood over Brown only two years ago) to start with; Holt had the backing of the belief of nearly every Democrat and Republican outside of this district that his position was impregnable; he had been making himself solid by his electioneering for the past eight years; he had command of a practically unlimited amount of money. Yet in the face of all this and more Hazelrigg without money, and in spite of the overwhelming odds against him, turns down that majority and scores a victory that gladdens the heart of every Democrat in this district. The news seems too good to be true. But we can positively assure our readers that Hazelrigg has, in spite of the overwhelming odds against him, beaten his opponent out of sight. Judge Hazelrigg bears his victory modestly and save that he is exceedingly grateful for the high honor conferred on him is no whit different from what he was before he became a candidate. One thing is especially noticeable; even his warmest Democratic supporters are not more demonstrative in their congratulations than are the better class of Republicans in this county.

A press dispatch mentions the peculiar case of Judge Edward T. Lane, of Cass county, Mo. The Judge was serving a sentence in jail for contempt of the United States Court in refusing to issue a special tax levy, but was elected to the Legislature by the largest majority ever given in the county.

Judge Lane is a native of this country, and has a wide circle of relatives here and in Bath. He was here on a visit to this section a year or two since, and renewed an acquaintance with his boyhood friends. The trouble for which he and two other Judges are in contempt is their refusal as County Judges to issue a tax levy for the payment of a railroad tax; their county not having received an equivalent for the bonds issued, for road never built. Rather than see his people unjustly oppressed, he and his confederates said they would rot in jail, Judge Lane's term as County Judge expires Jan. 1, when, upon payment of a $500 fine he will be released.

The Advocate returns thanks to the host of friends who by letter and by word of mouth are expressing so freely what they are generally pleased to call "the splendid work it did for the cause of Democracy in the late canvass." We are extremely grateful for the appreciation our efforts for Democracy have received. We, in common with other Democratic papers of the district, have done what we could to educate voters along the lines of what we are firmly persuaded are for the best interest of the people of our common country. Nothing pleases us more than the evidence given by the vote of this and other counties, where circulation is heaviest, that we succeeded in destroying the influence of our contemporary, that has endorsed and advocated all the worst heresies of the Republican party. You will always find the Advocate standing along the lines of the interests of its people and never arrayed against them.

Osman Digmahe robber and rebel has again appeared in the Sudan after a dozen reports of his death.

Channey Dewey is sore over the defeat of the Republican party and grows very eloquent in depicting the long line of dire disasters that are sure to follow Democratic success. Nothing short of a perfect financial upheaval will satisfy this prophet of evil things to be.

The issues upon which the Republican party went before the people are as completely settled as those it carried into the civil war. The only difference being the people decided in favor of the issues of 1860 and against those of 1892. The Republican party must find a new set of principles to bring before the voters of the country and integrate. This is all there is in it. The promises of the Democratic party as set forth in its platform and emphasized in Mr. Cleveland's letter of acceptance must be religiously kept or when we go before the country four years hence we will be as ignominiously hurled from place and power as were the Republicans last Tuesday.

Col. Laban T. Moore died in his home in Catlettsburg of heart failure, on Wednesday night, aged 64. Col. Moore had suffered a severe attack of pneumonia and was not able to withstand the shock of the disease.

Hon. Laban T. Moore was born January 13, 1829, in Cabell county, Va., and was of German parentage. After completing his education, which was obtained chiefly at Marietta College, he began the practice of law, and was located for a time in this city. He afterward moved to Louisa, Lawrence county, and while there was the Whig candidate in 1850 for Congressman, from what was then "our district." His race was a memorable one, and is often spoken of by our people. He was elected, and it was during this time that he delivered his celebrated speech on "An Undivided Country." At the expiration of his term, he was offered the renomination, but declined the honor.

At the beginning of the war he raised and became Colonel of the Fourteenth Kentucky United States Infantry. For many years he had resided in Catlettsburg, and his ability as a lawyer and his fame as an orator have made his name familiar all over the country. In 1856 Col. Moore was married to Miss Sarah Everett, of Virginia. Five daughters were born to them. He served with distinction in the State Senate and late Constitutional Convention.

We had expected to have grand Democratic rally and ratification on Wednesday evening, but on one of the principal committeemen, Henry Barnes, and in whose hands several absolutely essential parts of the rally had been placed, a most sad affliction fell, with such stunning force, as to preclude the possibility of his being able to give the matter his attention. It was then too late to place the matter in the hands of another in time to have the arrangements perfected for Wednesday night, consequently the ratification will have to be postponed. The notice will be given and we will have a grand blow out.

The correspondent of the Courier-Journal from this place is totally at fault in his unwarranted statement that the killing of Albert Barnes grew out of the killing of Kelly Day. The intimation is a most unjust one against the best people in Eastern Kentucky. Day's friends are not built that way. They are far from being assassins. Without consulting any one of Mr. Barnes' relatives, most of whom live in our city, we make the assertion that not one of them but will scout such an idea. The correspondent has been too free with his pen. Besides this, he has made other blunders. Neither this killing nor any of the previous difficulties occurred in this county. Barnes was not killed near Bowen, in Powell county, etc.

MURDER.

A FOUL AND BLOODY CRIME

Again Charged to Menefee County's Record.

Albert Barnes Waylaid and Brutally Slain Almost Within Sight of His Own Door.

On Saturday night as Albert Barnes was returning from his store at Bowen, Powell county, to his home in Menefee county, near Chamber's Station, and when he was within a quarter of a mile of that home, he was brutally shot down by villains who had waylaid him.

The parties were hid behind some hay stacks at a dark and lonesome turn of the road, and, as the victim came in range they poured into his head and body two loads of buckshot. His death was instantaneous, as his riding whip was still clinched in his hand when he was found.

The killing occurred about seven o'clock in the evening, but the body was not found until Sunday morning. A station is that some young men in a buck wagon, so it is told, rode by the place just after Barnes was shot. They say they heard the reports of the guns, and that when they reached the place where the body lay, their horse shied at something lying in the road. One of the party got out and saw it was a man lying on the ground bleeding. They say, so report goes, that they made no further investigation, went on and told no one of the circumstance, until the next day. This sounds exceedingly improbable.

Around the hay stacks were foot prints, and the wadding of the guns was also found, showing that muzzle loaders were used. In one of the guns the wadding used was yarn, while leaves torn from a memorandum book was used for wadding in the other. Arrests will probably have been made as this reaches our readers. Mr. Barnes was well-known in this city, where he was raised. He was a son of R. M. Barnes, Sr., and his brothers, T. K., R. M., J. W., H. H. and James, and his sister, Mrs. A. H. Judy, all live here. His body was brought to this city yesterday, and buried in Macheple cemetery. Elder H. D. Clark conducted the services at the grave.

The murderous spirit so rife in this portion of Kentucky must be given a check. It is only some two weeks since a most foul assassination was done on our streets—it was a brutal, cowardly murder—and now comes this equally dastardly and brutal killing from our neighboring county of Menefee. These things are unmistakable evidence that the lawless and reckless portion of our section are in need of the exercise of the strong arm of the law, to keep them in check. We repeat what we have said before, the good people of our portion of the State must give the officers of the law that sort of backing as shall enable them to properly execute the law of the land. If the assassin who sneaks up to his unsuspecting victim, and in cold blood murders him, goes unwhipped of justice, there will soon be no protection whatever for life or property. We have law enough in this country and officers who desire to enforce it, but both the law and its exponents must give the backing of public opinion. Without such backing is comparatively powerless. Things have already almost reached that point where men who are in possession of evidence against these foul vampires, scarcely dare to give it, lest they shall be numbered among the next victims. The law must be upheld and the lawless tree must bear its fruit, before these things will be checked.

The boys in the trenches have been heard from.

Your zeal, loyalty and fidelity to the people's cause should challenge and command the thanks and support of every Democrat. The increased majority in the county and appellate district is due largely to the clear and convincing efforts. We beg of our Democratic press to accept the thanks of grateful Democrats.

It is reported that President Harrison talked freely Friday about the defeat of his party Tuesday, attributing it mainly to its position on the tariff question. However, he thinks the Force Bill had much weight, and says that Carter's "rainbow chasing" and mismanagement also had a great deal to do with it.
